Let's Post Some Bills

Have you looked at the plaza lately?

There's a flag pole without a flag, and some frowsy shrubs, and a roping corral made out of boards that encircles an alleged fish pond. There is a small, mouldy green head sitting on a tombstone shaped rock and a sign saying, "No dogs allowed by order of the police department." Peering from a bower of scraggly black trees is a horrible warning hacked out of redwood that insults the tradition of the Monterey Peninsula, not to mention the rest of California, by bearing the misnomer, Father Serra. From Ocean Avenue, one's eyes rove sadly over this clutter and comes up against a backdrop of a chain store parking lot and a bus depot.

This is Carmel's plaza. Our park. Our beauty spot!

And I can remember when it was an unsullied bit of expert landscaping, a harmonious swirl of curved walks and masses of greenery. I don't know who is responsible for the condition into which this square of city owned land has degenerated. Maybe it just happened. But we do have a planning commission.

Of course the planning commission, which has not yet discovered there is a word in the English language entitled No, just plain No, has been harried and wracked for a year trying to find out how not to say yes to people who want special privileges for themselves to the detriment of the community as a whole. Under the circumstances, the commission has had little time for lesser matters. However, the planners in proxy session with the city council, decided to shift this responsibility onto the shoulders of the voting public, so perhaps the commission can now turn its attention to the park. And while the planners are grappling with this new crisis (it is only fair to allow them three years) I suggest that we erect a ten foot fence around the park. This will serve two purposes. It will shut out the sad sight of the plaza as it is, and it can be used for posting bills such as: "Get your tickets early for the Bach Festival," and "Vote for the School Bonds."

—Wilma Cook.

P. S.—Wanta bet that on our 1954 city election ballot there will be an "advisory" question, "Shall we or shall we not take down the corral around the fishpond in the plaza?"

ON DEMO DINNER COMMITTEE

Five Carmel residents were appointed to the 1950 Jefferson-Jackson Dinner Committee, Chairman Cyril Magnin announced this week.

They are Harriet Lull Alden, Dr. Horace Dormody, Frederick S. Farr, Mrs. Paul Low and George L. Rice.

Magnin, a San Francisco department store executive, said he expected more than 2000 Democrats from 48 Northern California counties to attend the dinner next Monday, February 21, at the Palace Hotel in San Francisco.

Ditch Digger Baffled By Unscheduled Revival Of Long Forgotten Spring

And the ditch ran away with the spring. Or, after the way of the birds and the bees, perhaps they ran away together. Whichever way, they got clean away from the ditch digger down on Scenic Drive and went amok.

The ditch digger was grunting along just south of the Holt house down there, making pretty

Piper Protected From "Pirates, Rovers, Thieves"

Skipper and mizzen mast man William T. Mahar, gazing horizonward from the forrard deck of the good clipper sloop Piper, has much to think upon. His eyes rove the waves over the vast rolling waters of the seas upon which he may sail, to wit, "limited to the waters of Carmel Bay not west of a line from Point Lobos to Cypress Point." He is acutely conscious of what might happen to him here on the vasty deep, were it not for the Marine Insurance Policy tucked safely away somewhere on land. And, creeping out from her mooring in Stillwater Cove the good ship Piper, 20 foot long and seaworthy, embarking for distant shores, for Point Lobos and points east, will in practically no eventuality cause any loss to her Master.

For little Piper is insured.

"Touching the Adventures and Perils which we, the said insurers, are contented to bear and take upon us, they are of the Seas, Men-of-War, Fire, Enemies, Pirates, Rovers, Thieves, Jettison, Letters of Mart and Countermart, Surprisals, Takings-at-Sea, Arrests, Restraints and Detainments of all Kings, Princes and People of what Nation, Condition or Quality soever, Barratry of the Master and Marines and of all other like

Sopranos In Demand For Festival Chorus, In Rehearsal Now

The dates for Carmel's Thirteenth Annual Bach Festival, the Bi-Centennial, are set for July 16 to 23, inclusive, announces the Denny-Watrous Management. Gastone Usigli, conductor, is rehearsing the Bach Chorus on alternate Tuesday evenings in the Kindergarten Room of the Sunset School, (entrance on Tenth Street), with Angie Machado taking the rehearsal on the week between.

Recruits for all sections are still needed, and at the moment sopranos especially are in demand. New singers should report at the rehearsal hall by seven-fifteen. Details can be secured by telephoning Angie Machado, 792-R.

The monumental St. John Passion, with which the Festival will open on July 16, is in rehearsal, and the Chorus members express themselves as awed by its beauty.

Inquiries as to the Festival dates are already being received from all parts of the country, reports the Management. In celebration of the 200th year since the death of Johann Sebastian Bach, the Bi-Centennial year is being marked by an extended program. Not only the Carmel Bach Festival, but Festivals, Symphony Orchestras, Concert programs, Music schools and universities throughout the country are giving special programs of the music of Bach.

good time going due north and just about to open up the Drive for traffic when lo, he meets up with a lot of fresh water, coming from the mysterious under ground, and going due west.

We, said N. P. Van Valkenberg and Company, diggers of ditches, cannot have this, and plopped in a pump.

I, chugged the little pump after days and days of trying to hold the dike, am not the Sorcerer's apprentice. I am just a little pump and all the water comes tearing down from the hills where the snow has melted and the rain rains, and I guess I can't do it all myself. And it couldn't.

We, said the workmen who were by that time wallowing about in hip boots trying to figure out something, just anything, to stop the flow of the spring, will be damned. But the spring wouldn't.

I, gushed the water main nearby, overhearing this profanity and insubordination on the part of its friends the diggers, am like to bust my sides. And it did.

We, said the taxpayers, sipping their cocktails with the Pacific Ocean to larboard and the miniature Johnstown flood clambering up the front steps, might as well get our money's worth of water. And they did.

At this writing, the old spring down at the end of about Seventh Street, which hasn't shed a drop of water since 1937 or thereabouts is still baffling the ditch diggers and still making pre and post prandial topic of conversation among the citizens there. The Horace Lyons are particularly amused. A while back when the seepage first began it came down and settled in fetid pools in the corner of their garage or the cellarway or some such place. It seemed to the Lyons that their friends began to avert eyes when accosted on the street. Who would have thought it . . . they could hear them saying to themselves . . . the Lyons of all people . . . so clean, you know . . . well, you know, I mean clean . . . and to let their septic tank . . . and it's really, but really, something you can't tell your best friend about.

Sound-color Films To Be Shown Free

You and I are invited to make a free trip via movie sound and color film Thursday night, February 23 at the Sunset auditorium. David Prince of the Morse-Gleason Travel agency and his associate, Miss Margaret Peasley, extended the invitation to the public yesterday with the announcement that nine outstanding travelogues had been booked for the free presentation.

Highlighting the program are the 1948 Olympic winter games at St. Moritz and a camera recording of the Berlin Airlift. The program begins at 7 p.m., ends about 11 with coffee served in the foyer throughout the showing of the pictures.

All are welcome to either stay throughout the program or come and leave as they choose, Prince explained.

Lobos League Opens Its Campaign For Funds To Purchase Lagoon Area

Cheered on by the County Board of Supervisors' allotting $25,000 to the forwarding of their project, the Point Lobos League meeting at Sunset School Wednesday evening, went into action to organize its drive to raise a similar amount from the friends of the community interested in securing the Carmel River Beach and Lagoon as a permanent recreation area.

Wanted, As A Gift Or To Borrow, A Pix Of Judge Fraser

There is a photograph, in the book, of the Carmel graduating class of 1916, diplomas held awkwardly out in front, stance on one foot. Perhaps there is nothing funnier or more nostalgic than a graduation picture thirty years after.

The Memory Book of Carmel-by-the-Sea, which Clara Newton Nixon is compiling in pictures, and which is to be presented to the library as soon as she has garnered in as many photographs as she can, has this and many other fascinating mementoes of the then and now in Carmel.

Do you remember the golf course and club house down on the Point? Mrs. Nixon says that Tor house now stands on the site of the ninth tee. The clubhouse was something like twelve-by-twelve, with a fireplace, and tea was served. And, as in Dorothy Parker's Aunt Elizabeth's house, it was "absolutely tea."

And the bath house, at the foot of Ocean Avenue, with the water tank up back where the sun warmed the water for your shower and you took the shower with your beach length bathing suit on.

The plan of the book is simple and logical. It takes any given building or institution, showing, for instance, the first school house and all the others up to and including Sunset as it is. The first library to the latest addition of the present one. Pine Inn before and after. And in between, all the amusing and memorable places and events she can round up. There is the original Abalone League, the

Not The Robin Here, But Fashion Shows Usher In The Spring

Lent hasn't started, yet we know Spring is here and Easter just around the corner. It isn't because of our customary end of February balmy weather, either, though that helps.

The Fashion Shows start next week. Carmel renews what is fast becoming a light-hearted tradition, the Pine Inn Fashion Shows, which usher in the changing seasons with a weekly display of the loveliest and smartest frocks the local shops have to offer.

It's fun for everybody, lunch and an eye-full of what's to be worn, modeled by pretty local girls, and matrons.

Schedule, as worked out at a meeting this week of the dress shop proprietors, is as follows:

Feb. 22—The Banbox; March 1—The Cinderella Shop; March 8—Gail Coupe; March 15—Harriet Duncan; March 22—Maxine's; March 29—The Silver Thimble and Lanz; April 5—The Yarn Tree.

Presided over by Francis Whitaker, president, about 25 members of the League rounded out plans for the drive, which will begin February 26 with a three day showing at the Carmel Theatre of the Edward Weston film and with the placing of leaflets and posters in public places such as hotel lobbies, the post office and the banks. The Weston picture, "The Photographer," a documentary made under the aegis of the Library of Congress, by Willard Van Dyke, an old pupil of Weston's, shows, among other things, sections of the Monterey Coast. It will be an integral part of the theatre's programming for the three nights of February 26, 27 and 28, and at this time, announcements of further plans will be made from the stage.

Posters will be made by High School students, under the direction of Margaret Millard and volunteer workers will canvas the community. C. Edward Graves will be in charge of display and, although the full roster of solicitors has yet to be made up, Lloyd Tevis has agreed to take the Pebble Beach area.

Local organizations such as the Lions Club, Rotary and Kiwanis have already volunteered their services in appointing men to raise funds from their memberships and the Carmel Art Association, the Audubon Society, the Woman's Club and the Sierra Club have generously offered their help in furthering the cause.

The League wishes it emphasized that the $25,000 to be raised by the community is not supplementary to the County's monies, which are designed to purchase the 40 acres south of the mouth of the river, but to acquire an additional 60 acres north from that point, which will include the lagoon and sand plant and the lovely horseshoe beach at the point, ending with the big rocks under the Jean Arthur house.

As president of the League, Francis Whitaker is today attending a meeting of the State Park Commission where final approval is expected to be put on record of the 40 acres already arranged for and an appraisal made of the value of the remaining 60 acres.

In prevailing upon the county to set aside $25,000 of the money it has been holding over a period of four years for acquisition of parks and beaches, to the use of the Carmel beach project, the Point Lobos League agreed to make every effort to raise a like amount for the securing of further properties. It is now the responsibility of all persons in the community interested in keeping these natural recreation areas free of commercialization to exercise the utmost vigilance, by way of purse and expressed opinion, to see that this is done.

PACIFIC GROVE UPSETS PADRE VARSITY 31 TO 28; LIGHTS LOSE, 31 TO 23

Before a sell-out crowd of screaming basketball filberts, the Pacific Grove basketball squads dealt a lot of gloom to Carmel partisans last Friday night as the Breakers copped both ends of the evening's twin-bill. After leading for most of the game, the tight Carmel varsity fell behind in the final three minutes and wound up on the short end of a 31-28 final. Pacific Grove, led by two fine basketball players, Warren Fugitt and Bill Larkin, turned in their best performance of the current season to practically cinch the B division crown. Larkin controlled both backboards which gave the Breakers ball control for most of the contest, while the fast accurate-shooting Fugitt racked up 16 markers to top all scorers.

Dick Weer, Carmel's speedy forward, sparked the Padre offense and played his best game of the year. Dick found the range for 11 points and did a remarkable job on defense, holding his man to a brace of markers. The Padres started out at a fast clip, racking up five points before the visitors could get a point on the scoreboard. Ahead, 17 to 14, at the half, and, 23 to 20, at the start of the fourth period, it appeared that the locals could hang on for the much coveted victory. However, Larkin and Fugitt dropped through a pair of baskets apiece and the red and grey cause became a lost one.

Fine defensive play by Steve Whitaker kept PG's usually high-scoring forward, Tom Holton, to an even zero for his night's efforts.

The lightweight tussle was a thriller for the first three quarters, but the Wavelets pulled ahead in the final heat to earn a 31-23 verdict. An accurate-shooting center, Fry, and a speedy forward, Castro, did most of the damage to the little Padres, defense. Fry meshed 11 points to take top honors while Castro tanked 7 valuable ones in the second half.

Bobby Updike played his usual steady game for the Padrecitos and took high scoring honors with 8 points. Butch Laugenour, league-leading lightweight scorer, dropped in 7 points to help the Carmel cause. Inability to hit their free throws proved costly for Dawson's midgets as they missed 12 out of 17. Pacific Grove, on the other hand, was extremely accurate on the Annie Oakleys, canning 11 out of 14.

With this victory, the PG lightweights keep right on the tail of the King City lights who are leading the loop with an unbeaten record. The only defeat on the Wavelets slate came at the hands of the King City Ponies.

SALINAS GAME POSTPONED UNTIL FEBRUARY 25th

Needing a victory in every outing to stay in contention for the B league crown, the twice-beaten Padre basketball team invades the Hollister pavilion tonight to test the fourth-place Haybalers. Carmel must win all their remaining games and PG has to drop a decision in order for the red and grey to pull even with the Breakers. The Padre lightweights have a score to settle with the Hollister Hayseeds tonight as the little 'Balers dealt the Padrecitos a whipping in their first meeting. The Carmel varsity defeated Hollister in their first game but lots of hay has gone out of the barn since the initial set to.

Sharpened by a long scrimmage with Monterey last Wednesday, the Carmel varsity is in top shape for tonight's league clash and should have the tools to get over the in-and-out Hollister squad. The Haybalers appeared to have the strongest club in the league at the start of the season but have been plagued by tough luck throughout the campaign. Injuries to key players and sickness during crucial games has kept the red and white gang in the league ruck.

Dawson's dandies start the evening's festivities at 7 o'clock when they square off against the third-place Hollister lights.

RICKETTS SPORTS SCARE POTENT FROST QUINTET IN TRI-COUNTY LEAGUE GAME

Gene Rickett's willing gang of casaba tossers have received for a lot of licks in the highly-regarded Tri-County basketball chase this season but they have acquired a lot of character and know-how in absorbing their trimmings. That they are definitely on the improve is shown by their game stand against the peerless Frost squad which was forced to go all out to defeat the small Sports Shop entry, 58 to 53. Frosts have been running roughshod over most of the entries in the league and are feared by the best of them. It took a 28 point effort by the brilliant Ky Miyamoto to overcome the battling Rickett's crew in last Monday's thriller at the Carmel gym. Walter Frey dropped through 19 counters for the Sports to top the Carmel scorers. Bill Cross was an especial thorn to the Forst crew as his hustling defensive antics hurried their passes and built up interceptions for the Sports.

Rickett's roster includes Bob Weer, Bill Cross, Howard DeAmara, Harold Stetson, Ward Gilbert, John Frey, Walt Frey, Max Hodges, and Ray Wermuth. With the experience garnered in this season's play, this scrappy band of kids might surprise some of the teams which have manhandled them this year.

PINE CONE OFF TO GOOD START IN WINTER LEAGUE TOURNAMENT

The crafty Jack Giles got his Pine Cone nine off winging in the winter league double-elimination baseball tournament last Sunday when the printers turned back the Monterey Holman nine, 2 to 1. Behind the stellar hurling of Miya Miyamoto, the hustling Coners put on a mid-summer exhibition of the national pastime and definitely established themselves as a threat for the league title. Blasting out 2 clutch blows in two official trips to the dish, brother Ky produced the power to manufacture the needed two runs.

A lot of familiar softball talent is cavorting for the printers in this year's winter league race. Besides the brilliant Ky, such good Sunset Field entertainers as Jim Hale, Louie Saunders, Johnny Canepa, Morey Viramontes, Bob Bell, Walt Frey, and the ebullient Giles are taking their licks in the Sunday hardball sessions.

Next Sunday, the Pine Cone will test the Pacific Grove Paint & Wallpaper crew on the Pacific Grove diamond. Pacific Grove won the first half winter league and defeated D&J Tailors last Sunday to keep a good hand in the tournament standings.

LOBOS STILL STRIVING FOR INITIAL LEAGUE VICTORY

Kev Duggan and a classy band of San Francisco City College basketball players scuttled the Monterey Peninsula College cagers, 69 to 41, last Saturday night at the Monterey pavilion and prevented the maroon and white lads from breaking into the conference win column. Eight times the local JC lads have gone to the post, and the elusive victory has slipped from their grasp a like number of times. Saturday night's tilt was just a case of the men against the boys as the lofty San Francisco team drove over, through, and around the small Monterey team.

San Mateo and Menlo come to the Peninsula this week end and the Lobos have hopes of taking the measure of Menlo. Menlo is currently third from the bottom in JV circles and it is not an impossible task for the local collegians to upset the visitors. San Mateo offers a little different talent as they are right on the heels of the league-

A re-scheduled meeting of the Carmel Associated Sportsmen Wednesday night may mean meat for the frying pan and certainly some left for future discussion.

After polishing plans for the organization to host delegates from sportsmen's groups in eight central California counties here tomorrow night and Sunday, the CAS started to untangle the back-lash in the problem of trout restocking, particularly in the waters of the Carmel Valley-Cachagua area.

Following a motion by Herman Woodward, CAS member, it was voted to work with the Salinas Sportsmen's club to achieve a better trout restocking program. Woodward's motion, which was carried, authorized CAS President Dr. James Finley to meet with the Salinas group next Thursday toward getting part of the funds due Monterey County from monies received from fines collected on game and fish law violations.

Some 18,000 near-legal size trout, it is estimated would be allotted to Monterey County for planting purposes if the funds are granted. First choice for the planting area was the Los Padres dam reservoir with Big Sur River second choice ONLY IF fishing rights and entrance via U. S. Forestry trails to the reservoir were denied.

Dr. Finley must receive assurance that the public will not be denied fishing rights or entrance to the Los Padres reservoir before the decision for restocking there would be made, we are told. That makes sense. He plans to get such assurance from C. M. Goldsworthy, manager of the California Water and Telephone Company in Monterey.

Yesterday, however, we talked with a spokesman of the Water Company who assured us that the gate below the dam would remain open to foot traffic, keeping the Forest Service trail open.

As in the past, vehicular traffic will be banned. Apparently it is felt by the Water Company that anglers willing to make the shank's mare trek to Los Padres are the kind who would not pollute or contaminate the water, the only reason which may make periodic restudies of the privilege necessary.

Construction of a fish trap at leading San Francisco City College quintet, having a 6 won, two lost record for the season.

the dam is in progress and if official sanction to keep the impounded water open to angling is received, the upper Carmel river may yet give good season-round trout fishing to local anglers. Although we recognize the necessity for the Water Company to maintain some sort of control over the water and adjacent land, we believe this can be done with equal satisfaction to both sides, the sportsman and the company. Certainly there is no better way of maintaining good public relations with an angling loving public.

Poulenc And Bernac, Piano-Composer, Baritone, To Give Joint Recital

For the Carmel Music Society event on Tuesday, February 28, two outstanding Frenchmen, Francis Poulenc, composer, and Pierre Bernac, baritone, will give a joint recital in the Sunset Auditorium.

One of Poulenc's triumphs in this country was the performance by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra of his Concert for Two Pianos. Two years ago he won new recognition when the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra gave his Concerto in G Minor for Organ, Strings and Kettle Drums.

Since that time many of his compositions have been recorded, such as Concerto in D Minor and the song, Les Chemins d'Amour, sung by Gladys Swarthout. Iturbi introduced his Mouvement Perpetuel to America. The Metropolitan Opera Association is now considering presentation of his new opera, which had its premiere in Paris last year.

This is Pierre Bernac's second American tour, and he will sing works of Gounod, Debussy, Milhaud and other French composers as well as those of his colleague, Poulenc. He is considered the authoritative interpreter of Poulenc, whom Virgil Thomson calls the greatest living writer of concert songs. It is the baritone who conducts arrangements for the pair while they travel in this country, since Poulenc's English is still only tentative.

All the season tickets have been claimed by members of the Carmel Music Society, but a few extra chairs will be placed near the stage for last minute demands. Franklin Dixon, president, will return from his Hawaiian cruise in time to be in the box office the night of the performance.

The Time Has Come . .

By Kippy Stuart

Recently I was invited into the William Mahar garden on Ocean Avenue and Hatton Road, to supervise pruning and spraying. Some gardens that one enters are so badly conceived that one has a feeling of distress at the clutter and misplaced shrubs. The Mahar garden is a delight to behold. Order and beauty surround the house and a better planned garden I have seldom seen.

There are a succession of gardens one leading to another. The house is built far back from Ocean Ave., leaving a greensward that slopes to the street. The grass is edged with a row of Eugénias, and beyond the Eugénias, right to the curb, and clustered close to the ground, are several dozen Cotton-easter horizontalis.

All Carmel wept with the Mahars, the winter of 1948, when that lordly Eugénia hedge succumbed to the black frost and bit the dust. Few people passed that corner without pausing and grieving that such an outstanding hedge should be no more. In spite of the beating that Eugénia hedge took in 1948, today the shrubs are once again on their way. The plants sprouted from the roots, and while one must wait and grow up with the new hedge, at least, the Eugénias did return.

It is embarrassing to be asked by one of the laborers, "What's that vine, Mrs. Stuart?" Embarrassing, because I had not the slightest idea what that vine was. All across the front of the house, and trained in arabesque, is the most lush perennial vine. I studied the leaf formation, I crawled underneath the thing, I made much noise about identifying the vine and giving the name to the laborer. I was stumped, and so would you have been stumped. Mrs. Mahar gave the answer. What looked like a vine, if you please, is a Chinese Elm tree, in espalier form, to beat any other espalier I ever beheld. It is a work of art.

One does not suspect that the hidden garden in the rear of the dwelling, is so spacious. An enormous lawn sweeps back from the house and the lawn is edged by specimen trees that march off in phalanx to an Escallonia hedge 15 feet tall. Flowering fruit trees in abundance, are now waiting that magic touch of Spring to burst forth; Washington thorn trees are swelling with buds. There is a group of Hawthorn trees that should be the envy of all gardeners. The beauty of the Mahar garden is that they take excellent care of the valuable shrubs. Each year at this time, the garden is gone over by experts; properly pruned and properly sprayed.

This garden may sound like one of those formal don't-touch-me gardens, but far from it. Paths lead hither and yon, to small beds of blooming annuals, where one may satisfy the urge to pick and arrange. The service yard is skillfully concealed by hedges and all in all, the Mahar garden is something to see.

Heer And Wiley In M.A.C. Sponsored Concert Saturday

On Sunday evening, February 19, 8:15 p.m., at the Carmel Women's Club, the Musical Art Club will present Dorothy Heer, pianist, and Norma Wiley, soprano. Both Miss Heer and Miss Wiley have been recent soloists with the Monterey County Symphony, and last month they gave a program together in Salinas.

Their program for Musical Art Club follows:

Nina, Pergolesi; Wiegenlied, Brahms; Er Ist's, Schumann; Norma Wiley.

Etude in E Major, No. 3, Chopin; Scherzo in B Minor, Chopin; Dorothy Heer.

Vous Dansez, Marquise; Lemaire; Il est doux, il est bon from "Herodiade," Massenet; Norma Wiley.

Jardins Sous La Pluie, Debussy; Saudades do Brazil, Selections, Milhaud; The Juggler, Toch; Dorothy Heer.

Clouds, Charles; I'll take you home again, Kathleen, Westendorf; Song of the Soul, Breil; Norma Wiley.

Musical Art Club started its 1950 activities with a Board meeting recently at the home of Col. and Mrs. Philip Schneeberger on Scenic Drive. Officers for the current year are Margaret Sherman Lea, president; Mrs. Carl Nuetzel, program chairman; Col. Philip Schneeberger, recording secretary; Miss Elizabeth Croftan, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. M. Klenke, treasurer. In addition to the officers, the board of directors includes Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Abinante, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kering, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Lyon, Mr. and Mrs. Rue Manhire, Miss Angie Machado, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Partridge, Mrs. Clarence Postelwaite, Mrs. Philip Schneeberger, Mr. and Mrs. Eben Whittlesey, Mr. and Mrs. Joey Olaeta, Mr. and Mrs. Max Forstl, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas

L. Griffin, Mr. James F. Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Forbes, and Miss Mary Lynn Drake.

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone Press, telephone Carmel 1.

Prince Of Liars Has Last Stand Saturday Night

The Prince of Liars, the hilarious farce which has been running at California's First Theatre, Monterey, since last November, has its final and closing performance this Saturday night, February 18. On the following Thursday, February 23, Over the Hills to the Poorhouse will open, directed by Rhea Diveley.

Rhea Diveley, formerly a star of the legitimate stage, who directed The Prince of Liars, so expertly, has chosen the following cast for the Over the Hills cast. Included are Dee Olivetti, Charles Ernst, Alex Olivetti, Bob Eder, Jon Stark, James Rutledge, Wayne Edwards, Willie Holman, Clare Barnwell, Barbara Glover, Patty Trevvett, Pamela Beales.

Appearing in the olio, although not in the show proper, are Ardith Morrisseau, Mary Johnson and Alice Ayres.

Over the Hills to the Poorhouse will run Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday night of next week, February 23, 24, 25, 26 and on Saturday nights only thereafter.

Malcolm Woods

Funeral services were held yesterday for Malcolm B. Woods, recent victim of an airplane crash when his private Beechcraft Bonanza went down in San Francisco Bay, near the end of the Dumbarton Bridge last Friday.

Mr. Woods, born in Kentucky in 1890, and a veteran of World War I, came to Carmel in 1939, as a visitor and liked it so much he set up in business as a pharmacist, at the corner of Dolores and Seventh. He remained in his store for nearly ten years, retiring three years ago and taking up flying at the Monterey airport at that time. He had to his credit about 250 flying hours and was rated a competent pilot. It was raining when he left the Oakland airport Friday, but visibility was rated at above minimum for flight. When he failed to return that evening searching parties were organized, by plane, helicopter and Coast Guard Crash boats. His body was recovered from the Bay after three days of search, but his plane is still missing.

Prominent in the Masonic Order, Mr. Woods was a member of Islam Temple and Commandery No. 1 Knights Templar of San Francisco, member of the Scottish Rite in San Jose and of the Carmel Lodge F. and A.M. In 1948 he ran for the city council here.

Funeral services, held at Paul's Chapel in Pacific Grove, with the Reverend John A. Logan officiating, were under the auspices of the Carmel Masonic Lodge. Pallbearers were: Everett E. Heisinger, Herbert E. Santee, Lloyd Bushby, Joseph H. Gladhill, Stanley W. Greb and Russell H. Jones. Burial was in the Monterey City Cemetery.

Survived by his wife Mrs. Blanche Woods, Mr. Woods also leaves his mother, Mrs. Laura M. Woods of Los Angeles and his son, Carl Woods, also of Los Angeles.

Columbia Grand Opera Quartet

BY EBEN WHITTLESEY

Pacific Grove, and the more hardy concert-goers from this side of the hill, turned out Monday night to enjoy the Columbia Grand Opera Quartet. While the confirmed opera-goers might turn up their noses at such a concert, it certainly has a worthy place in the musical season of any town removed from the metropolitan centers. For those who don't hear much opera it was very educational, and for others it served to conjure up pleasant memories.

The group consisted of Genevieve Rowe, soprano; Louis Roney, tenor; Helén Olheim, mezzo and Arthur Kent, baritone. They constituted a well balanced vocal team, which gave a spirited and imaginative performance without benefit of orchestra, costumes or stage sets. They ran the gamut from a four-voiced version of the sextet from Lucia to Wanting You from The New Moon, drawing enthusiastic applause at many points.

Miss Rowe and Mr. Roney are younger and less polished in their stage presentation than the other couple, whose maturity did not, however, impair their enthusiasm. They all seemed to enjoy what they were doing, and to convey their vitality to the audience.

Mr. Roney has a very powerful voice which would have been more effective if kept under better control. It is not a sweet tenor voice, being pretty hard in the middle range and when singing forte. But in soft passages Mr. Roney showed a nice quality and good control.

Miss Rowe has a sweet soprano with a light, flexible quality and a technique which speaks well for her training. Her most effective presentation was perhaps in her solo "Una Voce Poco Fa from the Barber of Seville. Her high register left something to be desired, but this may have been a temporary condition.

Miss Olheim has a mellow, pleasing voice marred at times by a slight tremble, but very well handled. One of her most effective selections was the duet Ai Nostri Monti from Il Trovatore. She has rather a contralto quality, which appeared to best advantage when balanced by the soprano as in their duet Sous le Dome Epais from

Jessie S. Allen

Funeral services were held on Tuesday, February 14, for Mrs. Jessie S. Allen, who, since 1945 had become known and loved by an ever widening circle of friends who will mourn the wealth of her personal gifts of charm and neighborliness.

Mother of Mrs. Muri Ogden of Carmel, Mrs. Allen died at the home of her daughter at Lincoln and Eleventh. She was born 76 years ago in Dundee, Scotland, and came to this country as a young woman. In 1900 she was married to the late Samuel Allen, living for some time thereafter in Hartford, Connecticut. After a journey to Honolulu, following the death of her husband, she came to Carmel to take up residence in the home of her daughter and son-in-law, where she remained to live out her life. Although failing in health for some time past, her sudden death was a shock to her family and friends.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. Allen leaves a grandson, Richard Ogden, also of Carmel. A sister, Mrs. Mary Johnston of Dundee, Scotland, survives her, as well as several nephews and nieces.

Lakme. Miss Olheim appeared at first to have a rather too closed tone, but this was not so noticeable as the singer warmed to her task.

Mr. Kent has a mellow base-baritone which he uses very well. His singing of the aria Avent de Quitter Ces Lieux from Faust demonstrated his fine lower range and expressive delivery. He succeeded perhaps better than the others in putting over to the audience a pleasant personality and a feeling of being at ease in everything he did.

One of the most spirited and entertaining ensemble pieces was the spinningwheel quartet from Martha. All of the singers had splendid diction and put over their lines in a highly finished manner.

The waltz from the Merry Widow as sung by the quartet was a high point of the evening, while the Goodnight quartet from Martha presented as an appropriate last encore was typical of the charm and good feeling which did much to win the audience.

SOIL CONSERVATION
Have you ever thought how much soil should mean to us? Without soil we would have no life. The soil must be conserved. How? Soil must be properly harvested, efficiently and economically distributed, wisely selected and skillfully combined and used.

Erosion is caused by the wearing away of the soil by wind and water. Accelerated soil erosion is the speeded washing and blowing that are the results of our use of the land.

Just how does erosion cause damage? In farm lands of all sorts, the first serious damage is the gradual removal of the fertile top soil, with resulting loss in production and increased expense for fertilizers. This is followed by the formation of gullies which finally extend and deepen to the point where the land can no longer be cultivated. In pasture and range land harm done is much the same, except that the grasses are first replaced by less desirable ones and these give way to weeds, as gullies widen and deepen. Since forests and brush usually grow on hill-sides and on mountains in California, the erosion that follows fire is the most rapid and injurious of all. The loosened earth and rocks are carried down to fill reservoirs and parts of cities, while the mountainsides are laid bare often to the solid rock.

Jean Reyburn.

THE CALIFORNIA BLACK BEAR

classed as eating the flesh of animals, but acorns and fruits such as manzanita, coffeeberry, and wild cherry, make up part of their diet.

In National Parks bears used to eat at the garbage dumps, and sometimes raid the camps if they smelled meat or other good foods. Sometimes they even break into cars to find food which they smell.

Tracks of a bear in snow or soft dirt are very interesting. They show habit of walking. Let's take the dog and the deer for instance. They walk on their tip toes, but the bear walks on his hind feet. The heel of a bear touches the ground almost as much as the human's foot does.

The black bear finds a well-hidden den or cave for winter months. Before it goes to sleep, it eats enormous amounts of food, and that food turns to fat on which they live during the winter.

When the mother bear has cubs, the cubs are not larger than a good-sized rat.

The Fourth "R" In The Bond Issue

By LOUISE SCHNEEBERGER

You probably awake, gentle voter, from a deep dream of bonds asking yourself why on earth, on top of all the obviously must construction for the Three R's, do they have to sink one-third of that million into a high school R-ditorium? By this time you're probably persuaded that the local Hi scholars deserve something better from us than that clattery, multiple-purpose cafeteria for a rallying point. But, you lie there wondering, couldn't they simply saw up a few boards and hit a few nails on the head and build a stage into that mammoth gymnasium of theirs?

Don't think for a moment that that idea hasn't been held up to the light and scrutinized from all angles. What the board of trustees found out was that it would cost $155,000 (0:0:0!) to do this bit of carpentry and attendant handiwork. Not that they were planning to put platinum hinges on the stage door, but it seems that the only possible place for the stage is on the north end, and it so happens that the girls' dressing room got there first. This spacious no-man's-land is made of solid concrete—the reinforced kind—and, we need hardly add, would not yield without a struggle. They'd also have to re-wire the whole structure to keep the footlights blazing—not to mention the spotlights—and if you've had any little wiring job done lately, you well remember the distinct electric shock you got with the bill. And this isn't all. In order to make it possible to hear anything but cheering sections in the place, they'd have to re-do the acoustics at a disquieting total of $8000. And even after this magnificent outlay of the taxpayer's money they'd still have a flimsy excuse for an auditorium because there'd be no pitch to the floor and the rush for the front seats would be enough to shiver the timbers and soften the hardwood.

But we still haven't outlined the most powerful deterrents. Whenever the stage had to be used—even for rehearsals—the physical education classes would have to grind to a halt, so that our boys and girls would graduate practically physically uneducated. Not only that, but the community wouldn't be able to use it after the sun went down because of all the athletic goings-on that go on up there in artificial light. It means, too, that the music students would have to do a 250 yard dash with their instruments, great and small, rain or shine, every time they rehearsed together. In fact the only advantage seeming to accrue would be to those boys wishing to major in furniture moving, as there would be hundreds of chairs requiring individual handling by strong arm methods every-time the occasion called for Hi-drama, or public speaking, or an assembly (instructional or entertaining) or a rally, or a debate, or an inter-school conclave, or a study body meeting (where they get basic training in government-with-the-consent-of-the-governed), or an educational movie, or for community use, musical theatrical, or any other use to which we adults might care to put it.

An item that should warm the cockle of any shopper's heart is that by stirring up one big batch of adobe and building the music room in conjunction with the auditorium we get it for $10,000 less than if it went up by itself.

After examining all these possibilities and scrutinizing all these eventualities, no one blames the board of trustees for having dropped the whole gym idea right down the Disposall.

Dr. Houghton Speaker At Literature Class

The February 21 meeting of Mrs. Glenn Clairmonte's current literature group will have Dr. Henry S. Houghton as its guest speaker. Dr. Houghton, during his many years' residence in China as director of the Pekin Union Medical College, developed a great interest in language rhythms, and he will discuss his ideas. He is a man of many avocations, and locally he is probably best known as the inventor of a game, Dictionary Please, which is a variation on anagrams. This he perfected while imprisoned by the Japanese for four years.

Everybody is welcome to join the discussion in Room 11 of Sunset School, from 7:30 to 9:00 next Tuesday evening.

This event will take the place of the meeting which was cancelled because of a flood of rain and the unexpected blackout of the Peninsula when Dr. Houghton was scheduled to speak January 10.

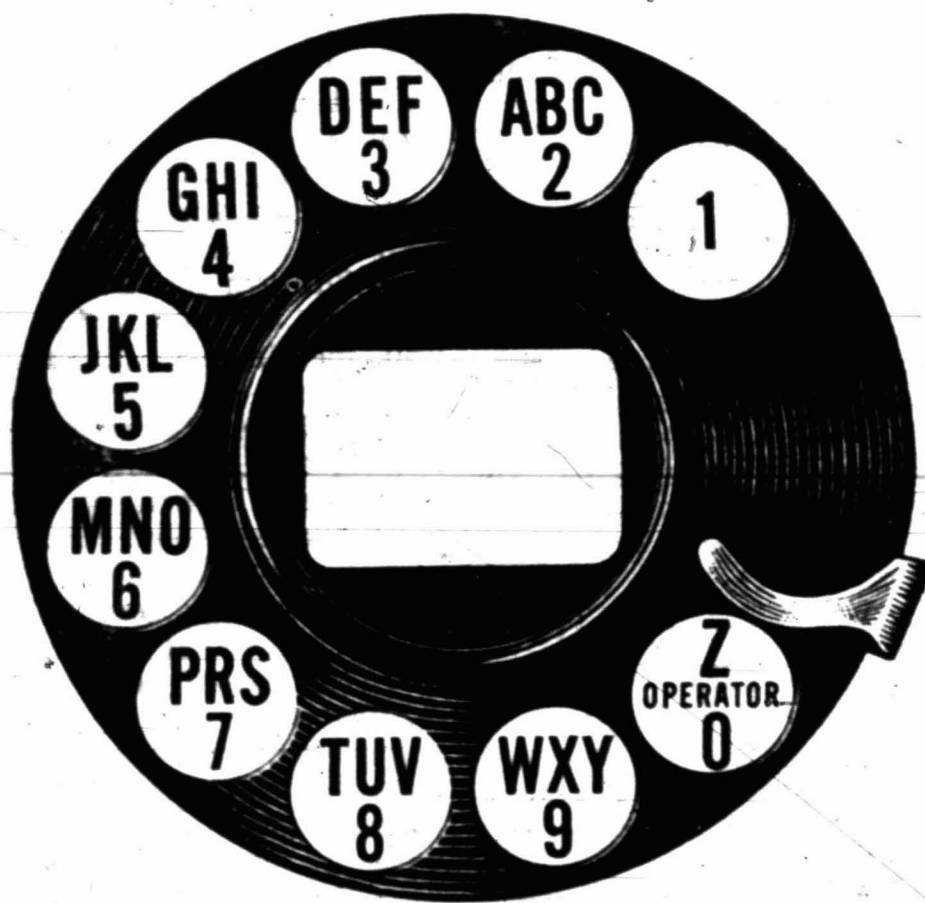

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone Press, telephone Carmel 1.

Direct dialing between Carmel, Monterey and Los Laureles begins February 22

Most Peninsula telephone numbers will change, too

When the new dial system for Carmel, and direct dialing for Monterey Peninsula calls goes into operation Wednesday, February 22, new telephone numbers will become effective for 16,000 Peninsula telephones. You'll then be able to dial direct to any telephone on the Peninsula without toll charge.

How you can help speed service after the February 22 change-over...

1. Destroy your old directory. Most numbers in it will be wrong on and after February 22. All new numbers—for the three exchanges which you'll begin dialing direct—will be combined in a single convenient list in your new directory.

2. Look up every number in this new directory. Peninsula numbers will be preceded by the name of the exchange. However, when calling, please dial only the figures in the number. Use only the red numerals on the dial... not the black letters.

3. Correct your personal telephone lists. Be sure of getting the right number first... by bringing your personal telephone lists up-to-date. Jot down the new numbers you'll be calling most often. It will save you time... and wrong numbers.

Beginning Wednesday, February 22, at 2:00 a.m.

ELECTRICITY

A flashlight is run by electricity and it has batteries. We have one in our house. It helps us to see and it helps us not to fall down at night. If it had not been for electricity there would be no flashlights.

—Sandra Heiden.

There was a turtle that wanted to know what the stars were. They are different colors. He never knew it.

His grandpa took him to an observatory to see the stars. He looked through the telescope. That's how he found out they were different colors. He learned that the sun was a great big star. He said that if he went to a real star he would sizzle like a drop of water on a hot stove. Pheotheophilopis turtle's Grandpaw taught him the stars are made of elements. The elements are, Nitrogen, Oxygen, Helium, Tin, Copper, Silver, Iron, and Hydrogen. Turtle thought he saw a falling star but grandpa said it was a chip of a star falling. Stars do not fall.

New Members Go Into Action At SPCA Board Meeting

The February board meeting of the Monterey County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was held at the Monterey council chambers on Friday, February 10.

Important new regulations were proposed by the three new board members (Miss Marjorie Fontana, Noel Sullivan and Dr. Ralph Weston) who were elected at the general meeting in January. These resolutions, which were unanimously passed were (1) that the budget committee (consisting of Mrs. Christine Raynsford, chairman, King Maderos and Dr. Weston) should complete the arrangements for the segregation of the funds needed for pound work from those given for specifically humane activities (such as, for instance, the enlargement of the work of the clinic for the animals of the poor, humane education, etc.) (2) At the close of each board meeting a time should be allowed for suggestions, questions and discussion from members who had been interested enough to attend the meetings. This should prevent any feeling that members have not enough voice in the society's work. (3) Frank Halter, shelter manager, should be present at all board meetings.

Dr. Weston, who was appointed, at the January board meeting, chairman of the Humane Education and Membership committees gave a report of the committees' plans for drives. These were accepted by the board cum laude. The present members of the Education committee include Mrs. Victor Drilea, in charge of organization.

ation, Miss L. Davis, junior SPCA; Mrs. Denis Crabbe, publicity. Contacts had been made with school authorities, teachers, boy and girl scouts, and service clubs, and all had expressed enthusiastic willingness to co-operate. For the educational campaign there are already on hand mimeograph equipment, complete with stencils; moving projectors and screens; slide projectors and screens; sound amplifiers and microphone and recording machines of both disc and wire types.

The Membership committee, which includes, at present, Countess Kinnoull, Mrs. Clyde Dorsey, Mrs. Virgil O. Miller, Miss Marjorie Fontana and Mrs. R. Ellis Roberts has a campaign of poster contests, publicity, the co-operation of many organizations for both children and adults and a surprise event. There are now seven classes of SPCA membership. Benefactor, Life, Patron, Sustaining, Associate, Active and Junior. New membership cards are being printed.

The drives of the Education and Membership committees wait on the conclusion of the budget committee's work.

New members elected were Miss Cherrie Child, active, and Miss E. H. Tomkins, associate.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"Mind" is the subject of the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon for Sunday, February 19, with the Golden Text taken from Isaiah: "The Lord is exalted; for he dwelleth on high: he hath filled Zion with judgment and righteousness. And wisdom and knowledge shall be the stability of thy times, and strength of salvation" (33:5, 6).

The following citations are among those which will comprise the sermon:

The Bible: "For, lo, he that formeth the mountains, and createth the wind, and declareth unto man what is his thought, that maketh the morning darkness, and treadeth upon the high places of the earth, The Lord, The God of hosts, is his name" (Amos 4:13).

"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Science reveals only one Mind, and this one shining by its own light and governing the universe, including man, in perfect harmony. This Mind forms ideas, its own images, subdivides and radiates their borrowed light, intelligence, and so explains the Scripture phrase, 'whose seed is in itself.' Thus God's ideas multiply and replenish the earth." The divine Mind supports the sublimity, magnitude, and infinitude of spiritual creations" (p. 510).

"Adopted Town" Writes In Gratitude To Local Chapter

Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross has received word from the Austrian village it "adopted" last year.

Miss Jane Burritt, who heads the committee on Overseas co-operation, heard this week that the sewing room equipment sent by Carmel has arrived in Austria, and plans are under way to start producing much needed clothing for the district.

Carmelites will be interested to learn that the chairman of the Chapter in Klagenfurt has personal knowledge of Carmel, due to a visit here by his daughter some years ago.

The letter follows:
Miss Jane Burritt,
Chairman, International Activities,
Carmel-by-the-Sea Chapter
The American Red Cross,
Carmel, Calif., U.S.A.

Dear Miss Burritt:
Although the two promised sewing machines have not yet arrived, I do not want to wait any longer to thank you for the most marvelous shipment which was received today.

As we unpacked the seven boxes the pleasure and excitement of our entire staff was indescribable. We have been in need of all these things for a long time, and now it will not be long before we have one of the most beautifully equipped sewing-rooms, complete down to the last detail and ready to produce much needed garments in the most professional way.

It is my pleasure to thank you and all those who, through their work and their generous donations made this gift possible in the name of our workers, of the many needy people who will benefit from your generosity, and in my name as chairman of the Karnten Provincial Branch of the Austrian Red Cross; though words cannot express the depth of our gratitude and the happiness which you will help us spread throughout the province.

Through my daughter, who spent many charming holidays in Carmel, I heard much of the beauty and attractiveness of your town. My daughter spent many years in the United States, and I am delighted to hear that the next International Red Cross Conference, which I hope to attend as a delegate, will be held in Washington in 1952, and thus give a chance to see your beautiful country, about which I have heard so much.

Thanking you again with all my heart for the most useful and generous sewing-room equipment, and also for your good wishes which we return with deep gratitude.

I am yours very sincerely,
(Signed)
Johann Zeno Graf Goess,
President.

Artist's Autobiography

BY A. G. WARSHAWSKY

With the arrival of the first war bulletins, local strategists set to work expounding the mysteries of modern warfare to the islanders. The most authoritative was an ex-sergeant of the French army, who was always to be found at the boat landing, explaining the significance of troop movements. A favorite theme of his was the famous Russian Steam Roller, which was to overwhelm the adversary by sheer force of numbers and yet endowed with such resilient powers that it could afford to roll backwards in order to recoil for a devastating forward spring. Muscovite cunning was more than a match for Teutonic brutality, and by Christmas the merry Cossacks would be in Berlin, devouring all the candles of the yule trees. Finally, after weeks of hoping and wondering, came the great news. The German hordes of Von Kluck, crushed and demoralized, were on the run. Joffre had dealt the enemy a knock-out blow on the Marne, and the war would soon be over. Our neighbor, an inspector at the local Post Office, brought us the joyous message.

By November, though the Germans had stopped running, preferring, like the poor sportsmen they were, to dig themselves into French soil, and the Russian Steam Roller had got stuck fast in the Masurian Lakes, things still looked bright enough to warrant special preparations for Thanksgiving. So I invested in a turkey, the first of its species which had been seen in the island. In fact, "gobble-gobble" so startled some of our Breton neighbors, that I had to calm their fears by assuring them it was an American eagle, but of a harmless and edible type.

It was an ideal season for painting, and Alex and I revelled in the beautiful autumn tints. Never had the fall seemed so lovely as in 1914. The picturesque character of the pollard trees, which are a distinctive note in the island scenery, gained a new and fantastic quality when despoiled of their branches, which were lopped off for fuel; for the price of coal was already rising rapidly and would soon be rationed.

One day, while out sketching, I fell into conversation with a stranger, whom, from his accent and his tweed suit, I took to be a Scotchman. To my surprise I found he was a German citizen, Leon Schwartz, representative in France, where he had lived for some time, of the famous Faber Pencils. I was even more surprised and no less delighted, when I learned that this enemy subject, his German wife and child, were in no wise persecuted by the islanders. On the contrary, it almost appeared as if the good Bretons pitied the predicament of these poor "Boches."

Alex by now had decided to return to America, so I took the opportunity of accompanying him as far as Paris, and got a glimpse of the capital in war time. I found little change. The first flush of war fever had disappeared and Paris was settling down to the war. There was no "kick" to be got out of this dull, heavy atmosphere, and I made haste to return to my island, to the little group of kindred spirits at the Centanini home, with their music and friendly gatherings by the fireside. Above all, I was glad to get back to my painting. This war, with its bloodshed and misery, might be a European tragedy, but what concern was it of mine? I was neither a soldier nor a patriot defending his hearth. I was an American painter, and my business, first and last, was to paint.

I MEET WITH "BICOT"

One day, passing by the debit adjoining our garden, I noticed in the primitive bowling yard belonging to the establishment a crowd of small boys throwing stones at a small cur. The poor little creature crouching in a corner in deadly terror, snarling impotently at its tormentors. As soon as it saw me, it instinctively made for me to seek protection. I forced the little savages to desist and asked them why they were stoning the harmless little beast. Vincent Desire, one of my small neighbors, informed me that the Mere

LAMENTATION

*Zion is the desolate mountain
Peopled with the gray fox.
Seeking the fleshless flower,
The silvery soul of Jerusalem.
The Assyrians have assailed her sanctuary,
The Egyptians have taken her laughter,
Judah is filled with the ashes of sorrow;
The Elders are lapping the dust,
The virgins are drinking the night.
The Lord is a falcon with flame in his eyes—
He has burned the walls of the palaces,
He has clawed the flesh of the famished;
Only a syllable of wind, a shadow of sun
Bring speech to a speechless land;
The pearls of Israel are poured upon the ground,
The women are stagnant with scum in their souls,
Their children are broken by the hounds of hunger,
Their skin is the bark of the trees,
Their eyes are the flowerless pits;
They are only a scoop of wind in a skull,
A dry flurry of leaves . . .*

*O Rose of Jerusalem, thy petals have fallen to dust
Thy blossom is covered with ashes
Thy fragrance is forgotten in stones—
O dark-thorned hour! deliver the people of Judah
Restore the rose of Jerusalem!*

—ORIAN DEPLEDGE.

SONNET FOR SAPPHO

*How was it, Phaon, in that long ago
When Sappho loved you? Had she words so sweet
A lover's heart must frolic and his feet
Be set to music no one else could know?
Perhaps her lips were sweeter than her words,
More eloquent her soft, endearing eyes;
Or was she all enigma, all surprise,
As merry and as secret as the birds?*

*Singing, she told her love and then was still.
Though lovers die, their dreams of love remain.
And so we hear that ancient heartbreak spill
Across the centuries like present pain.
Thus made immortal, Faithless One, we know
That Sappho loved you once, long, long ago.*

—NATALIE FLOHR.

WHITE MAGIC

*If one small dregm can grow into a man,
If pale illusion lying in the sand
Can change into the brilliance of reality,
If doubt, ignored, stillborn, discovers ugly truths to be,
Then surely we can dare to hope and plan
Another glimpse of heaven, somewhere, hand in hand.*

*Forget the wrongs and come along with me;
White magic, once discovered, we again may see.*

—COREY CURTIS.

Rigadoux, who owned the Cafe des Boules, had given the lads a few sous to kill the animal. Her granddaughter, who had kept the little dog as a pet, had left the island with her parents, and the old shrew did not wish to have the trouble of looking after the animal any longer. The boys had intended drowning the dog at first, but its snapping and snarling had kept them off; so they had decided to stone it to death.

The French in general are kind and tender with all domestic animals, but I have seen some cases of cruelty among the peasants in regard to dumb creatures not considered to be strictly useful. In a hard-living community, based on give-and-take, such callousness to suffering is seldom due to innate cruelty. Ignorance and incomprehension are the real causes.

I took the little fellow in my arms, where he lay trembling and panting; the look he gave me touched me inexpressibly. As soon as I got home, I washed and bathed his wounds, and was surprised to find him, after his toilet, a handsome little fox-terrier. His fear vanished and he was soon romping and bounding with the joyousness of a little goat, for which reason I nicknamed him Bicot, a derivative of Biquette, the French for a kid.

Wherever I went, Bicot would be at my heels. At first, not being accustomed to dogs, I would be annoyed by such persistence and shoo him off. But the look of reproach and pain he would give me would get the better of me and I would feel obliged to apologize by a caress. I made a small nest for him in an old basket in the kitchen, but early every morning I would invariably be awakened by scratching and whining at my bedroom door. For the sake of peace, I would have to admit Bicot. Then there would be such leaping and licking of every attainable part of my body! Finding it a nuisance to be forced to get out of bed so early, I decided to let Bicot sleep in my room. Much as I had always abhorred the idea of allowing a dog on my bed, I found that neither whippings nor scoldings could deter my roommate from becoming my bedfellow. On awaking each morning, there he was, curled up at my side, and no sooner had I opened my eyes, than he would smother me with caresses. I held out as long as I could. Eventually I am ashamed to confess that the basket was removed from my room. But not so Bicot, who henceforth claimed by right what had been accorded as a privilege, a corner of my couch.

Without wishing to become sentimental, I began to realize what company and devotion a small beast could supply. Bicot sensed all my moods, and when he felt that I was particularly unhappy, he would romp and frolic to make me stop moping. Poor little Bicot has taught me to love all animals and to be tolerant of spinsters and old people who seem to waste too much attention on their canine friends.

Early in March I wrote to Monsieur Fonet, telling him I intended returning shortly to Paris, and asked him whether it would be possible to find me a furnished studio by the summer. He replied immediately to say a very desirable studio was available in the Rue Boissonade, in the Montparnasse quarter. It was situated in a quaint old courtyard with a garden leading to the entrance. My friend, George Obersteuffer, the painter, with his wife and family, were living close by.

My preparations for departure from the Ile-aux-Moines were watched by Bicot with uneasy apprehension. His canine instinct told him that something serious was about to take place, some change which boded no good for him. While I was packing, he would jump on my knees and cajole me as a human being might in like circumstances. It hurt me to the quick to desert him. However, I had made arrangements with Natalie Morice to take care of my little friend during my absence, and the village lads had been warned that if they molested Bicot, they would be severely punished. As a matter of fact, there was now little danger that they would harm Bicot.

Me and the Universe

Letters to his family from a Carmel lad, twenty or thereabouts, studying art and getting into predicaments in Paris.

By Ric Masten

December 20, 1949.
You should hear Elizabeth tell her friends about some of the little mistakes I have made. When she has people to dinner I lurk around in the shadows listening to the conversation before I make my entrance. I stand outside of the room. I stand in my pinstripe suit and I listen. Usually Elizabeth brings the house down with my stupidity. After all has been said and after everyone has picked themselves off the floor, then the pinstripe suit and I make our entrance. I wear a pinstripe because it makes me look continental. I also eat with my fork in my left hand. But no matter what I do, as soon as I step into the room, everybody is on the floor again. I don't know what it is, but I guess the Europeans think I'm funny. Refreshing is a better word, yes. I'm just a little old breath of fresh air to some of these sordid characters. So what if I ask Elizabeth if Napoleon was French? What's so funny about that? And when she told me to go down to Versailles, why should she giggle when I said, "What have they got down there?" Also, why should she laugh because when I brought home a painting the other day I told her I had painted a picture of "that big church in Paris." I can't help it if the name "Notre Dame" slipped my mind for a minute. And then when I asked, "Is that a Catholic church?" Why should she laugh so hard she couldn't speak for two hours? Those are just little examples. Here is a little story that she has told so many times that even I can almost laugh about it now. When I first got here, or rather a couple of weeks after I first got here, Elizabeth said, "Ric don't you think you had better take a shower, or hasn't that time a year rolled around yet?" I said it hadn't, but I told her I would take a quick one for her anyway. So I up and went to the shower and looked at the faucet. They weren't labeled "Hot and Cold" but "Chaud and Froid." I wanted a hot shower. So I reasoned that "Froid" must be hot because I read something that a fellow named "Froid" had written, a book about sex. I thought to myself that they were "hot" theories so "Froid" must be hot. I turned the water on, "Froid" that is, careful not to turn "Chaud" because "Chaud" sounded like cloud and clouds were cold. The water didn't warm up. I thought Elizabeth must be out of hot water. So not to hurt her feelings, I took my shower anyway, and when I came down the stairs, chattering with cold, Elizabeth asked me what was the matter. I told her, and there at the bottom of the stairs she collapsed into a little heap with the tears streaming down her sweet, kind little face. She has been the life of every party since.

The other day I went to the "flea market." What a neat place that is! They sell everything there and it's all second hand. It looks like shantytown. Little tents flap in the cold wind and sticks are piled together to make little huts, and in all these little makeshift booths is junk. Everything you can imagine, books, tools, false teeth, chewing gum, weapons, kitchenware, all kinds of cloth, nuts and bolts, cameras, jewelry, cars, animals, anything that it is possible to imagine, all for sale and all very cheap. The people that sell look like beggars and sit like pack rats with beady eyes fixed upon their piles of junk; junk that they stole, found, bought at auctions, got a hold of somehow, dragged down to the market. The people that go there are antique dealers, some of the stuff in valuable, if you can find it) or very poor people who can't afford to buy things that are new. Gee, it really is quite a place, and the name "flea market" is perfect because you always come home with friends. I went for the first time with Don, my best friend, and Ed, Pat's husband, and the expectant father of Paris. They were there to see if they could get some dueling masks. And I decided to toy along and just look. Well, believe it or not, we found some masks and they cost about 30 cents. New they cost $10. Just as we were leaving, I saw some bar bells. I told the boys to go on home because I wanted to dicker for those bar bells. I wanted them because I hardly get any exercise except for walking up and down stairs and carrying my paint box to school. My paint box is heavy so my right arm is still strong but the rest of me is withering away. When I come home it's going to look as if I'd spent a year in Reno with the one-armed bandits instead of in Paris.

To make a long story short I bought a 150 pound bar bell and wobbled off to the metro like an enterprising ant. When I got to the sidewalk people began to crowd around. I guess they thought I was going to put on an act like the strong men on the streets over here. I paid no attention to the coins that were dropping around me but with glazed eyes I staggered on, singing in my best bass voice, "It Takes A Long Pull To Get There." I finally got there, to the Metro that is, and to my horror I found that it was 5:00 o'clock. Boy, are the Metros crowded then! I squeezed onto one of the packed cars pulling the 150 pounds behind me. I had a 30 minute ride to my station. Have you ever tried to press 150 pounds for 30 minutes? Its rough. Not only that but it kept getting in everybody's way. There was a little man who got very annoyed because everytime the train stopped, the darn thing knocked his hat off. I don't think that bothered him so much except that everytime it knocked his hat off, it almost knocked his head off, too. He said nasty things to me. After a while I couldn't hold it up any longer, so I put it on the floor, and everytime the Metro stopped everyone standing in the aisle had to jump over my rolling bar bell. At last my stop came and I fought my way to the door like old man river "toting dat bell and liften' that 150 pounds." I tell you, when I finally got home I was "tired of liften' and feared of dying." That little trip really wore me out. Haven't looked at the darn thing since.

Last night I went to a Russian night club with Don and the French girl he has asked to marry him. She's wonderful. Oh yes, I took a girl, too. One of those last minute affairs. She wasn't good looking, and it seemed to me that she couldn't get her lipstick on straight. She held her lips as though she were constantly surprised, kind of looked like the open end of a catsup bottle.

I tried every girl I know over here but they all had dates. So in the end I had to take "old catsup puss." I owed her a going-out, anyway, as she had me to a cocktail party where I met a famous French artist. He asked me to phone him when I got back from Switzerland and he would plan a lunch with a bunch of his artist friends. Quite a break for me! Anyway, I owed "catsup face" something, so off we went to the Golden Fish. The cover charge was a bottle of champagne. You can stay there all night, see the floor show, and dance. Dancing wasn't so good, but the floor show—Holy Hannah! A bunch of gypsies all singing and dancing and looking sexy. After the floor show, they go around to each table and sing to you and drink your champagne. When they came to our table, a beautiful gypsy sat in my lap and sang Golden Earrings softly into my ringless ears. I put on my best Ray Milland smile and toyed with her raven hair. The whole troop came over, polished off our champagne, and got rosin in our eyes off their violins. The gypsy on my lap ran her long slender fingers through my hair and pockets, but my wallet is still chained to me, so "slender fingers" got nowhere. When they were through with us, they went Cossacking off to another table, leaving one converted gypsy in our midst, meaning me. After the show I saw "slender fingers" dressed up in her Paris togs. Maybe it would be better to say I saw "slender fingers" dressed. Anyway, she looked like anybody else, and my dreams were shattered, and I spend the rest of the night brooding and mumbling that soy sauce was better than catsup.

It has long been known that the better a man's tools, the more he can produce and earn.

The farmer with one plow and a horse cannot produce anywhere near as much as today's farmer with a gang plow and a tractor. And today's oilman is a far more efficient producer of good products than ever in history...because he is backed by a tremendous investment in tools.

Every one of the 29,970 employees of Standard of California and our subsidiary companies has behind him $41,073 worth of equipment. With it, he produces more and earns more than ever before—his average income last year was $4083.81 in wages.

It is our responsibility to keep his "kit of tools" in excellent shape and provide more if he needs them. To that end, $450,000,000 has been invested in new plants and facilities since the close of the war.

Double Engagement

The Bartowick girls, Mary and Rose Marie, are to be summer brides, their mother, Mrs. Mary Bartowick announces. The weddings will both take place in the Church of the Wayfarer but on varying dates.

Mary will marry William L. Askew, son of the William L. Askews of Carmel, and Rose Marie's fiancé is Robert Lee Horner, son of Mrs. Minnie Castro. All the quartet are long time localities and plan to live in the community after marriage. Mary, Rose Marie and Bob Horner are all graduates of Monterey Union High, while William Askew received his high school diploma from Carmel.

Mary subsequently graduated from the Industrial Accounting School at Stanford and has been employed by the Monterey County Trust and Savings Bank for the past six years. Her fiancé served with the Merchant Marine during the war and is now employed by the City of Carmel.

Since her graduation from Monterey Union High in '45, Rose Marie has been bookkeeper for the Rice Electric Company in Monterey. Bob Horner, who served with the Navy during the war, is now employed in Salinas.

To celebrate the engagements Rose Marie gave a Valentine dinner for a large group of intimate friends and family February 14, and was honored at a bridal shower by Mrs. Breed Garritt on Sunday afternoon.

CWC Discontinues Canasta

At the Monday meeting of the Carmel Woman's Club card section Mrs. Reginald Foster, card chairman, announced that the Friday afternoon canasta lessons will be discontinued for the present. The bridge lessons will proceed as usual, under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. George Gooden. Future lessons are scheduled as follows: February 17, forming bids and leads; February 24, no trumps; March 3, slam bidding; March 10, leads and signals. An hour of duplicate play follows each lecture.

There were sixteen tables of cards at Monday's meeting, and exceptionally high scores recorded.

At the February 20 meeting local author Ann B. Fisher will discuss her latest book, It's a Wise Child, which has for its setting Monterey during the Robert Stevenson days.

AWVS New Member Tea

On February 23, at 4:00 o'clock in the La Playa Hotel new AWVS members, about 20 in number, will meet the chairman and board of directors for tea. As the occasion's purpose is better to acquaint new members with their officers only novitiates and AWVS officials are expected to attend. It is to be a charmingly appointed occasion, with Mrs. Frank Ringland, new AWVS chairman, presiding.

Valentines In Pebble Beach

Hearts and flowers, buttons and bows, paper lace and satin trims fluttered Valentine gaiety in the home of Mrs. Haword Veit on February 14. She entertained some thirty friends for luncheon in her Pebble Beach home, and the card-minded lingered deep into the afternoon for bridge and canasta.

Downey Return Assured

The Paul Downeys left Pine Inn Wednesday for the long postponed return to their Milwaukee home. In order to assure themselves and their many local friends of prompt and frequent returns the Downeys bought a small and charming home in Pebble Beach before they left. The Downeys have been faithful visitors to the Peninsula for some time and were widely entertained during their visit.

Dr. Fisk Addresses AAUW

Dr. Alfred G. Fisk, philosophy professor at San Francisco State College and well known lecturer, will address the AAUW general meeting on Saturday, February 18, at 2:00 p.m., in the Monterey Peninsula College Social Hall.

For many years Dr. Fisk led groups of writers and professional people through Europe and interviewed such significant political figures as Anthony Eden, Eduard Herriot, and others. A lecturer of unusual brilliance, Dr. Fisk will explore the subject "Can Europe Avoid War," for his Saturday audience.

Mrs. John Gratiot, social studies chairman, has arranged the program at which the Salinas branch of AAUW will be co-hostesses.

Refreshments, to be served after the meeting, are in the hands of the Social Studies section. All members are urged to attend and bring friends.

Monterey Peninsula College Social Hall is located to the right far end of the college grounds.

Mrs. Douglas Martz, AAUW vice president, will preside at the meeting.

Open House

To honor the birthday of her mother, Mrs. Anna Westcott of Carmel, Mrs. Arthur Bachman held an open house on February 12. From 1:00 p.m. till 9:00 p.m. guests drifted in and out enjoying cold snacks, tea, coffee and birthday cake. The house, on David Avenue, was gay with Valentine decor.

Assisting Mrs. Bachman to receive was Mrs. William Bjornvold of Carmel, and among the attending visitors were: Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Grimshaw and Patrick Grimshaw, Mr. and Mrs. William Bjornvold, Mrs. Jack Giles and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Giles, Junior, Mr. Harry Bowles, Mr. and Mrs. Fred O'Donovan, Sandra Lee and Kenneth O'Donovan, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Hawkswood with Gerry and Skipper Hawkswood, Mrs. Annie Skelding of Youngstown, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Westcott, Mr. Lawrence Westcott, Jr., Mrs. Bachman's son, Mr. George A. Ather-ton, Mrs. Arthur Beal and Anna Marie Beal.

Mr. Arthur Bachman was unable to attend his mother-in-law's party as he has been ill for some time in a San Francisco hospital.

Mrs. Simpson Carries On

While her nephew, Mr. W. W. Flewelling, is east Mrs. D. Simpson has, figuratively, rolled up her sleeves and taken over. She will assume his postal duties until her nephew's return. Mr. Flewelling went east to be with his sister, Mrs. James L. Case of Lynnfield, Massachusetts, who has been ill.

Meet The Author

The Robert Weavers gave a large cocktail buffet in their Highlands home Wednesday last honoring Harry Dixon. Mr. Dixon repaired to the Weaver party after an energetic pen pushing afternoon at the Bookmen, where he autographed the crisp white pages of his novel Something for Nothing. The book, succinctly characterized as the story of a heel, wears a strong black band across its middle to restrain the curious from pre-finish peeking. A money back guarantee will reward the stoic who who returns book to seller with seal intact. Dawn of autograph and party day Mr. Dixon received word that Something for Nothing is about to appear in England.

ADEQUATE WIRING

1. ADEQUATE ENTRANCE SERVICE.

Adequate Wiring begins with three wires of large enough size brought through your house to the main entrance switch.

2. ENOUGH CIRCUITS.

Adequate Wiring provides a sufficient number of branch circuits within your house to prevent overloading of any circuits.

3. PLENTY OF OUTLETS AND SWITCHES.

Adequate Wiring means plenty of convenience outlets and switches to permit proper arrangement of furniture—freedom from multiple cord extensions—and the use of appliances without having to disconnect one appliance in order to use another.

Your architect knows what he is doing when he specifies full and complete Adequate Wiring for your home. He is making sure that the wires and circuits will not become overloaded in the years ahead. Your wiring is like your plumbing. When water pipes are too small—water runs in a trickle... and when the wires are too small your supply of electricity isn't adequate to operate lights and appliances with proper safety and efficiency. Certified Adequate Wiring is a good investment. Insist on it. You'll be glad you did!

Delta Zeta Meeting

On Saturday, February 18, at 2:00 p.m. members of the Delta Zeta sorority will meet at the home of Mrs. A. A. Arehart on Via Paraiso and Herman Drive, Monterey. Hostesses are Dr. Luella J. Hall and Mrs. Sample Waldman of Salinas. Sorority newcomers to the area are cordially invited to attend.

Guest speaker will be Mrs. William E. Kneass, curator of Stevenson House, in Monterey, who will discuss early schools in Monterey County.

Children's Party At Harts

Formal spring reinstallation of the George Hart family was announced by daughter Ann's fifth birthday party on Saturday. The Harts, who bought the famous Fagan place two years ago, have been wintering with their three young children in the Lodge, but are now officially once more in residence. When fully assembled the family numbers eight, with three adult children distributed variously around the Bay region, and the youngsters, Suzanne, 4, Ann, 5, and Marianne, 6, with their parents in Pebble Beach. Saturday's event was the first child party since the Harts established themselves in Pebble Beach, hence an occasion of considerable moment to the little hostesses and their young friends. The Hildebrand sisters entertained the group with a fascinating puppet show after a round of children's games and prizes had been enjoyed. The table was decorated with a cloud of floating balloons and paper hats, horns and party paraphernalia contributed to the general gaiety during supper.

Helping the young Harts celebrate Ann's birthday were: Judy Hensel, Betsy Secombe, Susan Osborne, Jane Putnam, Gay Goffinet, Westy and Peter Fletcher, James Dunning, Dickie Brown, Stanley Smith and Don Raggett.

Lloyds Go And Come

The Frank Lloyds made a leisurely trip northbound recently, for business, change and general relaxation. They headed for Eureka, where they spent several pleasant days and broke the back-to-Carmel return journey with casual stop-overs here and there.

PHIL BACK

General rejoicing prevails among Phil Nesbitt's many friends on the peninsula. Phil returned last week from St. Louis, where he has been convalescing under the guidance of Dr. Ronald Klemme, from an operation performed October 3. He came as far as San Francisco alone and was met there by brother John. He is now with his mother in Pacific Grove and promises to visit us at The Pine Cone within a few days.

Everybody is delighted at the success of the hazardous operation. Everybody is very glad to have Phil Nesbitt back again.

Board Directors At East

Carmel Art Gallery board directors met at the Abel Warshawsksys February 9 for the praiseworthy purpose, it was emphatically announced, of having a good time. Business was prorogued by mutual consent and some unexpected talents and ex-officio congenialities revealed. The success of the evening launched proposal for a series of similar monthly foregatherings planned for the purely social purpose of promoting closer acquaintance and hence better working understanding between board members. Homes will be alternated for hospitality purposes.

Among board members attending the Thursday gathering were: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Meyers, Mr. and Mrs. Remsen Bird, Mr. and Mrs. John Cunningham, Mr. Harvey Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Emery, Mr. and Mrs. Hoylan Betting, Mr. and Mrs. Arne Halley, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Grabill and Miss Sophie Harpe. Mr. and Mrs. Steven Crouch, new gallery curators, were introduced to the board at the assemblage.

The Warshawsksys are already deep in plans for their European trip next month. They will be abroad about six months during which period Mrs. Warshawsksy will take time out for a course at the Cordon Bleu and a course of lectures by Jean Louis Barrault at his successful dramatic school in Paris.

AAUW Section Notice

Radio Listening section of the AAUW will meet Thursday, February 23 at 5:30 in the home of Miss Eleanor Henry, northwest corner of Second and Dolores Streets in Carmel. Attending members are asked to bring a box lunch.

Visitor Entertained

Mrs. C. Collins, wife of General Collins, has been houseguest of Colonel and Mrs. Alfred Balsam in their Highlands home. Wednesday evening Colonel and Mrs. J. K. Partello and Kippy Stuart honored the visitor with a buffet supper in the former's home.

Lions' Valentine

Lions' Valentine offering to their ladies was a dinner and dancing invitation to the Tuesday meeting. Hearts-in-lace decorations and suitable sentiments abounded, each lady receiving red and white carnation corsages from her lord. After dinner a remarkably interesting movie was unrolled for the attractive group who subsequently enjoyed a long evening of dancing to the strains of Stoney's orchestra.

Lions' fashion show date has been definitely set for March 10, with proceeds to be used for furnishing the new Youth Center.

Highlands Baby

There are now three Artellans in the family Highlands home. Benjamin Thomas Artellan, son of the Gerald Artellans, was born on February 11, in the Peninsula Community Hospital. Benjamin's mother, the former Louise Rodriguez, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Rodriguez of Monterey, and her husband, the son of Mrs. Louise Artellan of Mission and Seventh. Both the young couple are born and bred Peninsula dwellers, graduated from local schools and were married in Carmel in 1948.

Ann Hodgson Attends Conference

Among school and recreation officials registering for opening sessions of the second annual California Recreation Conference in San Jose this week is young Ann Hodgson of Carmel. Ann will hear Mark McCloskey, New York City Director of Community Education, Dr. W. E. Goslin, Superintendent of Pasadena Schools and Charles K. Brighibill, president of the American Recreation Society, address the conference.

Biz Carr At Dartmouth

While localites decorate the Sierra with sitzmarks, Biz Carr, daughter of Mrs. Virginia Carr, displays her Sierra acquired skills in the White Mountains of New Hampshire. Biz, who is attending Connecticut College for Women, was invited to the Dartmouth Winter Carnival for a few days' intensive skiing, skating and dancing. Dartmouth Winter Carnival is winter's correlative of fall's Yale-Harvard game, and high point in the inter collegiate-social cycle.

Heads-Up Hoopster

Six feet two inches tall and a dead shot, Pfc. Eugene Beltrame gives his opponents on other Sixth Army teams plenty of trouble. Gene gets a lot of fun out of Army athletics and in addition, he's saving money that will help put him through Muhlenberg college.

With his Army-learned skill of X-Ray technician, Gene could step into a well-paid civilian job, but he figures that college education will be worth more in the long run.

Gene says, "A young fellow who enjoys sports and also wants to learn a trade or continue his education gets his best chance in the Army." For full information on what the Army offers you, visit your local Recruiting Office. In Monterey go to the Post Office).

Out Of School

Cathie Flynn's fifteenth birthday was occasion and excuse for a gay exodus from Douglas School recently. Cathie's father, Mr. Edward C. Flynn of Pasadena, flew north and swept his daughter and a group of friends to the Del Monte Lodge for a dinner and dancing evening. Included on the guest list were: Pat Gillies, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brewster A. Gillies of San Diego; Peggy Glaser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Glaser of Glencoe, Illinois and Pebble Beach; Sharon Shuck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Buckner of Pebble Beach and Ann Richards, daughter of Mr. Addison Richards of Altadena. Girls' partners included: Michael Marrin, David Cleghorn, Niels Reimer, Jerry Cummings, Ronnie Doolittle and Michael McClure.

Wandering Cochranes Return

The Edward W. Cochranes are back in Hatton Fields Mesa. After a southern tour, visiting old friends and new haunts, they touched home base briefly on their way to another excursion to San Francisco. A few days in the city sufficed, and they are now back home. Saturday night they entertained at dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Edward McKim and Mr. Thomas McShane of Omaha, Nebraska. The McKims have taken a Carmel house for the spring.

Mrs. Jeffers Local Patient

After several long weeks in the University of California Hospital Mrs. Robinson Jeffers has returned to complete her cure on the Peninsula. She is now being very quiet at the Peninsula Community Hospital, but expects to be back at Tor House very soon. Mr. Jeffers, who was in San Francisco during his wife's hospitalization, has returned with her to the Peninsula.

Postponement For Gray Ladies

Personnel change at Fort Ord has brought about postponement of the Gray Lady training course planned for February and March. Recruitment is continuing, however, Mrs. Harold McLean, local Red Cross chairman announces, and the new class opening date is soon to be announced.

MacLennans Entertain

Mr. and Mrs. J. William MacLennan enjoyed a week end visit from Mrs. Robert J. Gale of Santa Barbara and San Francisco recently. Saturday evening the MacLennans honored Mrs. Gale at a dinner in the La Playa hotel.

This Saturday Mrs. MacLennan makes an excursion to San Francisco for the particular purpose of looking over the new exhibition at the Palace of the Legion of Honor, the "Thirteen," an exceptional collection of water colours.

Queen Of The USO

Mary O'Brien, passage-bird Carmelite, is Queen of the USO for February. From Boston Mary came to Carmel some eight months ago, to visit her sister and brother in law, Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. John Fleet. Since her arrival she has been an active and conscientious USO volunteer and last Saturday, during the USO coronation ball she saw her services rewarded. With an escort of three service men and two fellow workers she was summoned to the throne, formally received the crown from the hands of Deloris Liedstrom, retiring regent, and surveyed a floor show presented in her honor.

Mary is the daughter of Mrs. Edward F. O'Brien of Boston, and attended nurses' training school at St. Margaret's in that city after her graduation from Medford High School. She plans to return to her home in June when her brother in law will be transferred and the Fleets move on.

Attention housewives! HOLMAN'S BOOK DEN has just received some new (and very different) Cook Books. They're so entertainingly written that you'll want to keep them as bed-time stories! The first of these, "The Art of Cheese Cookery" by Nika Standen, contains a history of cheeses natural and processed with hundreds of ways to transform them into mouth watering dishes. In addition to wonderful recipes, it tells what cheese to buy for eating, cooking and seasoning; how to store it, how to cook it and how to serve it. This book is a must for you who plan well-balanced tasty and thrifty meals. Surprise—at the end a section complete menus, delectable and easy to assemble!

Aunt Ella's Cook Book by Marguerite Gilbert McCarthy is a very amusing and cleverly written book with recipes for food the way Mother and Grandmother used to make it, revised for use in today's kitchens. Every kind of old-fashioned recipe imaginable and—ladies—if you're wondering how to disguise that inevitable hamburger, it appears in this book in 23 different forms! Recipes are both unusual and sensible, compiled for brides as well as the seasoned chef, and you'll find how to make the most out of everything that comes from the butcher, grocer or your own storage shelf. A very timely book for now is Cooking with Christ by Florence Berger. This book will help you bring the feast and fast days, seasons of the Church year, into your home via the kitchen. There's an index of special feast and fast days at the end; turn to the pages indicated and you will find just what to serve and how to cook it. A very worthwhile book for the days of Lent just ahead.

We are proclaiming "White Stag Week" at HARRIET DUNCAN'S! What you've all been waiting to hear about for those warm spring days ahead. These sport clothes are made of that new practical material—Sailcloth. This wonderfully smart material is Sanforized and guaranteed the colors will not fade. All at such reasonable prices, you've never heard the like.

The shorts come in three styles: Little Boy shorts, smartly tailored with deep pockets, and all for only $3.50. The Longer short for those who prefer this to the short short, and the Toe-Dancer short with a little flared skirt over all—becomingly pert, priced at $6.95. All come in deep blue, red, white and aqua. You'll want a top to wear over your new shorts and HARRIET DUNCAN'S has those, too! All shapes and sizes. There's the new sun Bra with a lastic-loop that fits snugly over the head and under the arm, able to adjust to any size. The Bodice Bra fits tightly all the way to the waist—and how it fits! Very practical, because it can also be worn with a skirt to make a very chic backless sun-dress. To wear over all if the weather happens to cool off, HARRIET DUNCAN'S has your answer. A Boat Shirt, very practical with a "monk's neckline" making it completely new-lookish. Longer jackets are the Sandpiper, hip-length, and the Trainman, three-quarter length. Both button all the way down with nice deep pockets. And just as if that weren't enough, to complete your wardrobe is a sailcloth skirt! Matching colors with shorts, jackets, it's stylishly flared with tight fitting pockets. Wonderfully light and comfortable, an essential part of these amazing sun togs for a complete fun wardrobe.

Monterey's premier hairstylist, WOODARD, has many new and glamorous ideas for the new high necklines of spring and summer fashions. The most outstanding feature to remember is that the hair is getting shorter—shorter—shorter.

There's the modernized shingle of the '20's and the "ducktail," and pert little bangs will add a new springish look to your hair style without too much curl—but most important—get the hair off the neck! WOODARD'S hairstyling becomes you and only you! So start a new trend in the community. Take the elevator up to the mezzanine of the San Carlos Hotel and make an appointment today!

The VILLAGE BOOK SHOP on Ocean Avenue is rejoicing over the arrival of some large shipments of books on music and the Arts and Crafts.

Edith Griffin, owner-manager of the shop, and her assistants, are busy unpacking and arranging these nooks so that they will be most easily accessible. Of course the usual line of fiction and non-fiction is as attractive as ever, including a complete line of the Modern Library book, many of which were formerly available only in cumbersome and costly sets; now to be had complete for only $2.45.

PTA Founders Meeting

Mrs. Edmond Sullivan, local PTA president, was in charge of the founders' day PTA annual meeting on February 14. Mrs. L. D. Lilley, president of Twentieth District California Congress PTA was guest of the occasion.

Mrs. V. C. Osmont reporting for Mrs. Edgar Bissanz, radio and movie chairman, read a letter from Mr. Mark Keller, movie distributor for the Peninsula. Mr. Keller submitted to the board for their approval a list of forthcoming movies purported to be suitable for children; and expressed a sincere desire for cooperation between parents and the entertainment industries.

Mr. Stuart Mitchell spoke briefly on the School Bond Issue and Mr. George Mosolf discussed the successful measures now in practice at the High School. Mr. Arthur Hull made a safety report on Carmel Woods School. Mrs. G. Ridgely Parker urged careful cesspool checking. Uncovered cesspools and septic tanks present serious hazards, particularly in districts not previously equipped with sewage disposal. Anyone wishing advice or assistance in this matter should telephone Mr. William Satchell at 527.

After the speeches a floor election for nominating committee was held, with the following selections: Mrs. Herbert Blanks, Mrs. Thomas Elston and Mrs. Robert Jones.

Before lighting founders' day birthday cake candles, Mrs. Lilley spoke on the meaning of founders' day and its purpose. A delightful tea was served by Mrs. R. B. McMath and her refreshment committee.

Legion Auxiliary Dinner

Valentine decor by candlelight was background for the Carmel Unit-512 of the American Legion Auxiliary potluck dinner served to some 30 members and guests on February 14. Initiated as new members were: Mrs. Ogville Jones, Mrs. Kenneth Jones, Mrs. Janet Giles and Mrs. Rosella Miller. Membership for Mrs. John Marron was approved at the business meeting.

Community service chairman reported full quota for bed jackets and scuffies but relayed a request for spectacle lenses, frames and cases for use in the South Pacific.

Mrs. D. Pirie-Beyea, well known lecturer and 30 year Legion member, spoke on the subject of Americanism. Mrs. Pirie-Beyea is an American citizen of British birth who served as nurse during the first world war.

Mrs. A. J. Hart, entertainment chairman, arranged the program with president Mrs. John C. Giles in charge.

On Tuesday evening, February 20 in Legion Hall, Carmel, the unit sponsors a card party for members and friends, with proceeds to be used for their various activities. Refreshments will be served.

Rotary Luncheon

Corum Jackson, Carmel Rotary Club's first president, introduced the speakers at the club's weekly luncheon meeting in La Ribera. Stuart Mitchell addressed the group on the School Bond issue and D. D. Muir demonstrated use of the dial telephone system. Under the direction of John Farr, the High School Chorus gave a brief program of songs.

Home Visitor

Lady Maria Antonia Field spent a few sunny days, recently, in her home in Laguna Seca. She returned to San Francisco to prepare for her European trip in April. To be in Rome during Holy Year is the principal objective of her visit and a large part of her stay will be passed in Rome where she will have an audience with the Pope.

Visitors At Douglas

Science department of the Monterey Peninsula College underwent inspection last week end. Miss Evelyn Field, Dean of Los Angeles Junior College and Miss Frances Kramer, science teacher at the college, came north expressly for that purpose. The two instructors were guests of Mrs. Grace Parsons Douglas of Douglas School, during their visit.

Dr. Pearson Attends Conference

Dr. Charles N. Pearson, local optometrist, will close his office for a few days next week. From Sunday, February 19, through Wednesday, February 22, Dr. and Mrs. Pearson will be in Santa Cruz where Dr. Pearson is to attend the California State Optical Association Convention.

Carmel Woods Mothers

Acting Carmel Woods School Mothers' Club chairman, Mrs. Edwin C. Miller, is summoning other members of the group to a meeting at the school on Monday evening, February 20, at 8:00 o'clock. Purpose of the gathering is election of officers for the newly formed group.

For Printing that is distinctive—Telephone 2; The Pine Cone Press.

Alberto Pupils Play

Three of David Alberto's promising young pupils will give an informal concert Saturday evening in their professor's home on Santa Fe for a group of invited guests. Leon Panetta, 11, who will give two solo performances in the near future, will play Schumann's Papillons on this occasion, and other selections. Walter Hall, 18, plays Beethoven's Sonata, Opus 27, and a composition of his own, while John Hunt, 15, also presents a personal composition as well as Debussy's Poissons d'Or and Granados' Albarado Groziosa.

Birthdays At Fort Ord

Patients at Fort Ord Station Hospital enjoyed cake, gifts and trimmings at the monthly birthday party organized by the Red Cross, Monterey-Pacific Grove Chapter and the Webster Street USO. Young hostesses on hand to brighten the occasion were: Deloris Liedstrom, Diawana Waddell, Henrietta Beller, Evelyn Delvey, Shirley Atkinson and Jo Corona. Gray Ladies assisting were Mrs. Vechel Rigsby and Mrs. Harold McLean.

Entertainment was provided by Mrs. J. R. Kidwell, pianist, and Mrs. Lillian Dadigan, vocalist.

Deweys Now Carmelites

Dr. and Mrs. Hartley G. Dewey, who have been hail and farewell Carmel visitors for the past 12 years, have now settled here permanently. Dr. Dewey's shingle, Physician and Surgeon, now hangs in the Patterson Building and the Deweys are casting eager eyes about for a likely building spot, with a view. Any view, as long as it's a local one, will suit them beautifully. Dr. Dewey, a Cornell man, came to California to assume the post of Medical Director of Yosemite National Park, where he and his family remained seven years. They moved down to Beverly Hills when war moved the Navy in, but cast increasingly longing glances Carmel-wards. After their son, Hartley, Jr., married Sally Glaser, the Carmel visits became more frequent and the young Dewey's recent purchase of Holiday Inn sealed the elder Dewey's resolution. Now the Hartley G. Deweys, both junior and senior, are Carmelites from this day forward.

There are two other sons in the Dewey family, Bryce, a rancher, who is here for the time being assisting in family installation, and Madison, who owns the ranch adjacent to his brother's in Utah. Both boys are graduates of the University of California at Davis. Hartley Dewey graduated from Cornell where he majored in hotel administration. The young Deweys have two small children and a brand new Pebble Beach home of which they took possession on February 15.

Mrs. Dewey, Sr., was an active interior decorator in the land of many mansions, Los Angeles, and is looking forward to exciting step-

Church Women To Observe World Day Of Prayer

The Monterey Peninsula Council of Church Women will observe the World Day of Prayer next Friday, February 24, at the Presbyterian church in Monterey. The meeting will begin with a box lunch in the recreation room of the church at 12:00 o'clock, with the president, Mrs. M. O. Lawrence of Pacific Grove in charge. Tea and coffee will be served by the Presbyterian women, and all interested women of the peninsula are urged to attend.

At the close of the luncheon a speaker will tell informally of the work of the two U.S.O.'s in Monterey and point out the importance of cooperation by the churches in this work. At the two o'clock meeting in the church auditorium Mrs. Lee Sadler of Pacific Grove will report on some first-hand information she has received on the problems of the migrants in the San Joaquin valley. The C.C.W. has assisted, in the past, in promoting religious, recreational, and educational programs among the migrant farm workers.

The program prepared by the national United Council of Church Women will be led by Mrs. John W. Dickinson of Carmel, with women from the other churches assisting. This ritual was written by Michi Kawawi, head of a girls' school in Tokyo, and is being used by groups throughout the world observing the Day of Prayer. Solos will be sung by Mrs. G. E. Ellis and Miss Lola Best.

National radio chains are broadcasting special programs for the observance. Columbia is devoting its Sunday program at 10:30, EST, to the Day of Prayer; N.B.C. has sent out the special prayer prepared by the C.C.W. to all its affiliated stations suggesting that people begin and end the day, Friday, with the prayer; Mutual has a special program on that day at 10:15, EST, and A.B.C. has one at 8:45 EST, all of them in the forenoon.

By Edwina Brown

Carol Ann Smith and Diane Diamond, who attend Dominican Convent in San Rafael, visited Carol Ann's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Floyd Smith, here in Carmel the week end of February 11. Diane, Carol Ann's roommate at Dominican, lives in Portland, Oregon, when she is not attending school. An informal coke party in their honor was given by Pat Harn at her home Saturday afternoon, February 11, from 3:40 to 5:00. Those who attended were Donna Douglas, Dianne Lewis, Nancy Nutter, Deborah Geering, Mavis Jones, Carol Templeman, Suzanne Smith, and Edwina Brown.

A dinner party in honor of her house guest, Diane Diamond, was given by Carol Ann Smith at her home Saturday evening, February 11, from 6:30 to 8:30. In attendance were Donna Douglas, Diane Lewis, Mavis Jones, Pat Harn, Carol Templeman, and Edwina Brown. Following the dinner party, the girls' respective dates arrived. Those boys who attended were Mike McClure, Bob Updike, Dick Weer, Frank Cleary, David Claghorn, Henry Werner, Jim Hare, and Mitch Steenhoudt. Other couples dropped in during the evening.

Afterwards, Donna Douglas, Carol Templeman, and Edwina Brown remained for a slumber party. As at most slumber parties, there was very little sleeping, but much talking and eating.

Some 36 students and sponsors left for four days of skiing at Yosemite at 4:00 Friday morning, February 10, and returned Monday evening February 13. Skiing, ice skating, and tobogganing were enjoyed but unfortunately there were several injuries on the ski slopes. Bill Albee and Mrs. Francis Whitaker both suffered broken ankles; Connie Campbell, a twisted thumb; Jackie Six, two pulled leg tendons; Cynthia Zarafonitis, a pulled knee tendon; and Sally Holt and Connie McKibbin, sprained ankles.

Block "C" and French Club officers were elected at noon meetings on Tuesday, February 14. Officers of the Block "C" are as follows: president, Bill Daniels; vice-president, Tom Handley; secretary, Joe Beard; and treasurer, Thor Rasmussen. The French Club officers are Jan van Niel, president; Linda Bain, vice-president; and Pat Merivale, secretary-treasurer.

FOREST THEATRE TRY OUTS

First try outs for the Forest Theatre Guild's forthcoming production of Emyln Williams' play The Corn is Green will be held at Sunset School cafeteria on Tuesday evening, February 21, at 8:00 o'clock. This and subsequent try outs, whose dates will be announced later, are open to all residents of the Peninsula.

Boon To Intelligent Layman Is Bulletin Of The Atomic Scientists

BY LYNDA SARGENT

One day not long ago, I picked up from a friend a copy of the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists. Plutonium, uranium 235 and the magic words, nuclear fission, go right over my laywoman's head like white birds flying, their underbodies shedding small feathers and their droppings stippling with beauty the rocks offshore, but their functions and their avian antics a simple mystery to me.

But, like the birds, the implications and purposes, the things men do to and with them, the things I can understand about the vast field of atomic power is all of the intensest interest to me, as it must be to all of us who wish to know what we can of the most significant development of our time.

When I had so often asked, to find this information?

Suddenly, opening the pages of the Bulletin, I had found precisely the right thing. With scraps of gossip and conversation flying about me, I read it from cover to cover; from the name of its editor, Dr. Eugene Rabinowitch and of its Board of Sponsors which include Einstein, Oppenheimer, Urey, Compton and a formidable list of greats in the field, to the book review section at the back. Then I promptly decided against that new corduroy skirt and sent off two subscriptions.

Perhaps the best way to indicate the fascinating range of subjects is to give the list of contributions to the current number which lies here on my desk. The editorial in this issue, written by Dr. Rabinowitch on The Atomic Energy Commission, Congress and Scientists should be, in my opinion, read by every intelligent American from the eighth grade to eternity. Here you will get a dispassionate, reasoned and humorous account of just what happened to a Mr. Hickenlooper—dubbed Senator—and the collapse of the secrecy cult. The issue had been set in print before Mr. Lilienthal's resignation, but an authentic explanation of that event along with Lilienthal's future plans, is given; The Scientists' Viewpoint on AEC Security Clearance, by John Swartout; Carl Kaysen's article on Military Importance of the Atomic Bomb; General Bradley's outline of American defense plans; United Nations Atomic Energy News and the Interim Report on Six-Power Talks, including the Soviet Control Plan, are all here.

The somewhat awesome title of the magazine, seeming to indicate an audience limited to those who profess the science, is entirely misleading. It is a resume of the news in the field, with occasional articles by philosophers and men like Julian Huxley, and every bit of it is readable.

Like all first-rate efforts, the Bulletin is not popularly supported, and has never been self-supporting. When a letter came yesterday asking subscribers to publicize the Bulletin, it seemed a duty to science and to peace to do so.

In conclusion, the letter says: "We—the scientists—work for a day when man will live to enjoy great new discoveries of science without a sense of impending disaster. In this spirit we ask help of our friends."

When asked what he thought about the Bulletin, Dr. C. B. Van Niel, chemist at the Hopkins Biological Laboratory, said, "It is indeed very important, and there is nothing else of its kind in the field."

Send your subscriptions or, if you wish, outright donations, to Bulletin of Atomic Scientists, 956 East Fifty-Eighth Street, Chicago 37, Illinois. Subscription is $5 a year.

Wanted, As A Gift Or To Borrow, A Pix Of Judge Fraser

original Pine Cone office, the Forest Theatre in a series of dance movements, the Old Dutch Market; in fact, the history of the town in photographs, drawings, lithographs and in whatever medium pictures are made.

Mrs. Nixon has an almost complete record of the first City Council. Pictures of George Beardsley, Peter Taylor, D. W. W. Johnson and Eva de Sable.

Lacking in this series is a picture of Judge Alfred Fraser, and Mrs. Nixon very badly wants one. If there is one in the town, and she can have it, or have it reproduced, the generosity of the donor in making it available to her will be appreciated not only by the compiler of the book but by the public with whom it will be shared.

Cold Outside? Who Cares When He Has Feathers

The resourcefulness and adaptability which enable small feathered and furred creatures to endure and seemingly enjoy the cold winters of the northern snow country were the outstanding theme of the Audubon screen tour at Sunset auditorium last Saturday evening. The good-sized audience showed enjoyment of the program by laughter and frequent applause while the film was being run and at the close.

Dr. Walter Breckenridge, preceding his film-showing, discussed the importance of conservation of forests and wildlife, for both commercial and recreational reasons.

The Paul Bunyan country, with its great forests, many lakes, and rushing streams, snow covered and icy, was the background for shots of logging operations with powerful modern machinery that make the mythical giant logger a back number. More appealing were the tiny birds that flit about the trees finding food, the larger ones that sleep under the snow, ducks and swans that brave the icy waters throughout the winter. The little birds are not dependent upon the suet that the Breckenridge family put out on the trees about their home in the wilds, but they welcome it and become quite tame.

Perhaps the shots most enjoyed by the Carmel audience were those of the vigorous pileated woodpecker digging into a tree for grubs, and the two wood ducks that nested and hatched out families high in the trees. One duck used a box properly prepared and nailed up some dozen feet above ground by the naturalist; the other found a commodious hole made by a woodpecker 25 feet up in the tree. When the ducklings were two days old—and had never eaten—they obediently jumped from the trees by ones and twos and threes and followed the mother ducks to the nearby stream, which they swam seventy-five yards to a small island where they had greater safety and abundant food.

Preceding the program Ferdinand and Ruth, science teacher at Monterey College, announced the conservation and wildlife lecture series to be given in March and April by specialists in their fields, under sponsorship of the Carmel adult school.

All Are Invited To Attend Lecture On Christian Science

How does Christian Science heal? How does it remove fear, solve personal and business problems? If you want to know facts about Christian Science, come to a free lecture at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Carmel, Friday evening, February 17 at 8:00 o'clock.

The lecturer is Herschel P. Nunn of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. All are cordially invited to attend.

John Wilgress Will Lecture On History

Beginning Tuesday evening, February 21, at 8:00 o'clock, and carrying on for two successive Tuesdays, John Wilgress will present a series of three lectures on history, under the sponsorship of the Carl Cherry Foundation. Educated at Wadham College, Oxford, Mr. Wilgress, who, with his wife Jane, runs a shop full of rare, new, used, fantastic, beautiful and amusing books in Monterey, is also a student of history.

The lectures will be given in the foundation studio at the corner of Fourth and Gaudalupe and will be on the following subjects: February 21, Problems of Historical Writing; February 28, Karl Marx; March 7, Arnold Toynbee.

The studio has so limited a seating capacity that it will be necessary to make reservations in advance by writing the Carl Cherry Foundation, Box 863, Carmel, well ahead of any or all scheduled lectures.

Crouches Receive Appointment As Gallery Curators

New curators of the Carmel Art Gallery, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen D. Crouch, were elected by unanimous vote at Monday's meeting of the Carmel Art Association's board of directors. They will fill the post jointly, beginning on March 1, when Nelly Montague's resignation takes effect.

Coming to Carmel three and a half years ago, following an Army assignment during the war when Major Crouch was stationed at Fort Ord, the Crouches are recruits to the growing number of men and their families who came to Carmel in line of military duty and could not resist coming back.

Since returning to become a permanent resident, Mr. Crouch has been engaged in commercial photography and has worked part of the time with the County Welfare Department in Salinas. His wife, Ethelwyn, who has lately been managing the Golden Bough Theatre under Edward Kuster, has various interests, chief among which are painting and the theatre. She has taken part in little theatre productions, keeps busy with her brush, and manages to include in her busy repertoire home, husband and 10 year old son, Stephen, III.

At Monday's meeting, Armin Hansen, past president of the association, was elected to the executive committee, which, headed by Dr. Remsen Bird, now includes Abel Warshawsky, Frank Meyers, Sophie Harpe, Nora Grabbill, Patricia Cunningham, S. F. B. Morse, Arne Halle, Dr. Margaret Levick and Armin Hansen.

Discussion of plans for future events, both social and professional, was the chief business of the evening, with projects for lectures that include a talk on jade by Dr. Henry S. Houghton, of the Highlands, a lecture for students by the dean of the California Institute of Technology and an address by Morse Adams Cartwright, director of the American Association for Adult Education. The completion of Howard Smith's portrait of General Joseph Stilwell, commissioned by West Point, will be celebrated with a reception honoring Mrs. Stilwell and the artist.

The board of directors of the association went on record as being happy to cooperate with the Pt. Lobos League in the matter of the State Park.

Next board meeting will be held on March 1 at the Gallery.

Roger Sessions To Be A Judge In Phelan Music Contest

Roger Sessions, eminent composer, musicologist and teacher of music has been chosen to head the judging committee for the James D. Phelan award in music.

The award, carrying a stipend of $1000, was provided under the terms of a bequest made by the late Senator James D. Phelan, to further the development of native talent in California. This year there will be one award in music. The contest is open to composers engaged on works of symphonic proportions and to those working in the field of opera, choral or chamber music.

Men or women, contestants must be native born Californians between the ages of 20 and 40, and should send applications to the office of the James D. Phelan Awards in Literature and Arts, 820 Phelan Building, San Francisco 2, on or before March 15, 1950. Applications must be made on forms provided for that purpose.
